

Women, Land & Legacy (WLL) is a unique USDA state-wide program that provides locally-led education, outreach, and networking opportunities for women landowners and farmers. Events throughout the state have focused on a wide array of topics, from estate planning, to farmland leases, tool and machinery safety, and conservation practices, all for women who are connected to the land in Iowa. You can learn more about WLL at www.womenlandandlegacy.org.

A local committee of women have recently started a chapter of Women, Land & Legacy in (insert county name(s)) and are inviting (insert business name or say “your business”) to participate in this exciting program. There are numerous ways to support your local WLL chapter including sponsoring events through gifts, financial support, and event promotion, among others. Your contributions will help our committee reach as many individuals as possible, while giving your business an opportunity to showcase its support of women in agriculture through our partner acknowledgment in the promotion of and during those events.

A member of our committee will be following up soon to talk further about how we can work with your business to highlight and assist in the great work women farmers and landowners are doing for agriculture in Iowa. In the meantime, please contact us at the information provided below if you have questions or want to discuss more details.
